Your Emotions Your Baby's Health

of Thrive More, Now premier program

You Would Do Anything To Help Your Baby Have A Healthy Body

Your emotions, both the father's and the mother's, affect your child's health and behavior during life. Worry, anger, fear, and depression can increase your child's risk of sleep and behavior problems as well as his or her chances of becoming depressed or developing asthma.

This program is highly recommended for anyone who is considering having a child. If possible, take this course before conception.

At Your Emotions, Your Baby's Health, you will learn:

- About research showing the detrimental impacts of negative parental emotions during gestation and afterwards
- About automated processes every mind uses and how to condition your settings for success
- Powerful skills to automate your emotional response to better-feeling states
- How to help your baby thrive throughout life using inborn emotional guidance
- How to understand your emotional guidance system for confident thriving
- Techniques that help you master the most difficult emotions
- How to create the peaceful, love-filled home of your dreams
- About the health and well-being benefits of greater positivity
- How to strengthen your resilience
- How to increase your intuitive abilities
- How to worry less with confidence
- Ways to stop negative spirals
