

Be The Peace You Want In The World—Today

It is possible for you to contribute to world peace every day. It does not require money.

It takes a little of your time, but the personal benefits you reap from using time in this way are well worth the effort . Your own clarity of purpose and thought increase as a result of the process. Your immune system functioning improves and all your relationships are enhanced.

You give a gift to the world and it is returned tenfold in measurable results.

At Peaceful Co-existence, you will learn:

- The root of peace, and how to be wholly supportive of world peace
- The three aspects every human shares where connection can always be found
- How to connect with your highest self, the most authentic version of you
- Why peace marches are successful and war protests counter-productive
- How to look for the benefits, instead of the differences
- An Open Heart Meditation that spreads the energy of peace
- The power of expectation
- To go far beyond tolerance, by transitioning to appreciation of those with whom you share this planet
