

You Have Guidance. Do you use it?

New research demonstrates conclusively that emotions are a sensory feedback system. Our eyes, ears, nose, taste buds, and sense of touch are also sensory feedback systems. The leading researcher sees emotional guidance not as a 6th sense, but as our first sense, pointing to the fact that even one-celled ameba's have guidance.

The difference between humans and all other life forms is that we often ignore our guidance. Other life forms never do. We have been taught to ignore our guidance in favor of 'rational minds'. As it turns out, the purpose of our rational minds is not to show us the truth. The purpose of our rational minds is to prove our personal beliefs to us. They are designed as if we are smart enough to consciously choose beliefs that serve our higher good. They are so good at their assigned task we will sever relationships, and even fight wars, based on the misleading evidence they provide. Our guidance continually encourages us to peace and harmonious relationships, to prosperity, success, and love.

The main factor separating those who thrive and those who flounder is whether their established beliefs serve their highest good.

In Understanding Your Emotional Guidance, you will:

- Learn the language of your emotional guidance
- Develop skills to recondition your beliefs so they serve your highest good
- Identify your purpose in life using your emotional guidance
- Learn the connection between emotional stance and behavior
- Understand how to have great relationships with less effort
- Learn how to amplify the messages from your guidance
- Increase your intuitive nature
- And much, much more.
